SUBJECT: Respiratory Protection Videos Posted on the Occupational Safety and Health Administration (OSHA) Web Site

1. Purpose. To inform Job Corps centers about two safety videos now available on the OSHA Respiratory Protection Web site.
2. Background. On January 8, 2010, OSHA announced the availability of two safety videos for health care workers that feature training and guidance on respiratory safety. These videos are the same as those mentioned in Information Notice 09-46, Occupational Safety and Health Administration (OSHA) Safety Videos Posted on YouTube. Because centers' access to YouTube is blocked due to the impact that streaming videos have on the available bandwidth at Job Corps centers, these videos are now available for review by accessing the Department of Labor (DOL) YouTube channel or visiting the OSHA Respiratory Protection Web site. The new videos, "The Difference Between Respirators and Surgical Masks" and "Respirator Safety," are available in both English and Spanish.
3. Action. Job Corps safety officers, health and wellness managers, students, and staff required to use respiratory protection are encouraged to download the videos from OSHA's Web site, <http://www.osha.gov/SLTC/respiratoryprotection/index.html>.

Addressees are to ensure that this Information Notice is distributed to all appropriate staff.

4. Expiration Date. Until superseded.
5. Inquiries. Direct all inquiries to Marsha Fitzhugh at (202) 693-3099 or
